

Student Number 36

First Draft

I think a good role model for our generation would be Martin Luther King Jr. He was born January 15 1929. First he name was Michael but it was later changed to Martin. His grandmother and father served at Ebenezer church so when it was his time he he also worked there. He was a co-pastor. He went to a bunch of public schools. Then he graduated at the age of fifteen. He enrolled in Boston university. He graduated with his doctors degree and he met his soon to be wife Coretta Scott. later they would have two sons and daughters.

In 1954 he became pastor of that church the he was co-pastor at. Then he got serious and civil rights of his race. He was a member of the National Association of the Advancement Colored People. Soon later after he joined the bus boycott became in existent. The buocott lasted 382 days and on December 21 St. negros and whites were equal on the buses.

On the enening of April 4th 1968 Martin Luther King Jr. was standing on his Motel balcony when he was shot in the head. He was best konw for his "I Have A Dream" speech. And at the age of thirty-five he won the Nobel Prize he was the youngest man to do so. Thats why I think he is a perfect role model for our generation. Because of his bravery, determination, and his coyrage to do what many African-Americans of his time wuold want to do.

Revised

Standing up for what is important, determination, and hard work are all amazing qualities of a good role model. He was through thick and thin and he still tried to do better than the expectations. I think a good role model for our generation would be Martin Luther King, Jr.

He was born January 15, 1929. First his name was Michael but it was later changed to Martin. His grandmother and father served at Ebenezer church so when it was his time he also worked there. He was a co-pastor and went to several public schools. Then he graduated at the age of fifteen from high school. He enrolled in Boston University. He graduated with his doctors' degree, and he met his soon-to-be wife Coretta Scott. Later they would have two sons and daughters.

In 1954 he became pastor of that church that he was co-pastor at. Then he got serious and civil rights of his race. He was a member of the National Association of the Advancement Colored People. Soon later after he joined the bus boycott became in existent. The boycott lasted 382 days and on December 21. Negro's and whites were equal on the buses.

On the evening of April 4th 1968 Martin Luther King Jr. was standing on his Motel balcony when he was shot in the head. He was best know for his "I Have A Dream" speech. And at the age of thirty-five he won the Nobel Prize he was the youngest man to do so. That's why I think he is a perfect role model for our generation. Because of his bravery, determination, and his courage to do what many African-Americans of his time would want to do.